

Days Between Oral Argument and Opinion Filing

This table shows the average number of days between oral argument and the filing of majority opinions authored by each of the justices. Given that a variety of factors could influence the length of time between oral argument and the filing of an opinion in a particular case—including the time taken by other justices to write concurring or dissenting opinions—averages for individual justices should be compared over an extended period.

	Number of Majority Opinions Authored ¹	Ave. No. of Days From Oral Argument to Opinion Filing
Abrahamson	10	76
Bradley	8	110
Crooks	11	60
Wilcox	10	128
Bablitch	12	89
Steinmetz	11	68
Geske	10	105

¹ Nine cases (Faber v. Musser; State v. Hicks; Burnett v. Hill; Chevron Chem. Co. v. Deloitte & Touche LLP; Aiello v. Pleasant Prairie; State v. Spaeth; Edland v. Wisconsin Physicians Serv. Ins. Corp.; State ex rel. Jacobus v. State; and Wisconsin Pub. Serv. Corp. v. Heritage Mut. Ins. Co.) did not include oral argument and thus do not figure in this table. The table also omits Ives v. Coopertools, a 6-0 per curiam decision, and Donaldson v. Urban Land Interests, whose record lacks a date for oral argument.
